Henry VII

Homework 1

Henry Tudor became king in 1485 after he defeated Richard III in battle at the Battle of Bosworth. Henry married a possible rival, Elizabeth of York, daughter of Edward IV. By marrying Elizabeth, Henry united the warring families of Lancaster and York. This brought peace to England and ended the war of the roses. The symbols of the red (Lancaster) and white (York) roses were joined together to make one rose.

In 1503 Henry made an alliance with Scotland by having his daughter, Margaret, marry King James IV of Scotland. Henry also made an alliance with Spain when Prince Arthur married Catherine of Aragon.

To keep peace in England, Henry banned private armies. Lords who disobeyed him had to pay big fines. Those who rebelled against him lost their lands. The money and lands made Henry so rich that he didn't need to ask Lords for help.
